

I think that this idea is way past due. Its to the point that I will go as far as to take the phone off the hook at night just to get some peace. However, I think that it would be wrong not to include charities in this list. They are just as bad if not worse that ordinary telemarketers. I do not believe anyone has the right to solicit me just because I am home and off the phone!